Request from ASBOG PG examination candidate: "Please consider allowing GITs who are close to the five-year work experience requirement to take the exam even if that requirement is not yet met on the date of the exam. Then, the candidate will wait after passing the PG exam to be considered for full license." Because the ASBOG exams are only given twice each year, GITs who will have fulfilled the five-year work experience requirement shortly before or after the exam date currently must wait as long as an additional year after fulfilling the requirement to take the exam, get the exam results, and then be considered for license. By allowing them to get the examination out of the way, the wait can be significantly shortened.
